FIREMEN WILL EAT CHICKEN

Men of Engine 1 to Be Guests of Engine 3 Company
Tonight.

The firemen attached to Engine 3, of the central station, are to feast tonight following the regular monthly meeting. They will serve a chicken supper and the special guests besides the board of engineers will be the company of Engine 1, at the West End.

Several speakers are down for a talk and the affair promises to be all that the men of No. 3 can make it.

A new culinary department has recently been installed at the engine house and the expert chefs of the company will put it in full operation for the first time tonight.

Mercedes Aerle, No. 682, F. O. E., will meet this evening at which time there will be an initiation of candidates.

CREW RESCUED IN BREECHES BUOY

Three Masted Schooner Gen. A.
Ames Goes Ashore on Cape Cod
in Blinding Snow Storm

Word was received here this morning by Superintendent Harding of the First Life Saving District that the three masted schooner General Adolph Ames, from St. Johns, N. B., for New York, went ashore on Monomoy Point, Cape Cod, early this Wednesday morning during a blinding snow storm and was fair to be a total loss.

The crew of the Monomoy life saving station succeeded with much difficulty in taking off the crew of six men in the breeches buoy.

CREW TAKEN OFF BY TUG

Water Logged Schooner
G. W. Anderson Abandoned Off the Isles
of Shoals

Between 9 and 10 o'clock this forenoon the schooner George W. Anderson, 224 tons, loaded with lumber, sprung a leak and was abandoned a half mile inside the Isles of Shoals. The vessel has two anchors down and is dragging in a rough sea. The captain and crew of four men were taken off by the ocean tug John G. Chandler of Philadelphia and brought to this city.

Superintendent S. H. Harding of the life saving service on learning of the trouble sent a wireless to the revenue cutter Androscoggin to hurry to the assistance of the vessel.

The captain and crew called on Chief of Police Hurley, who made arrangements through the county commissioner to send the shipwrecked men home. Three were sent to Rockland and two to Boston.

The schooner was built at Newburgh, N. Y., in 1873.

POLICE COURT.

B. H. Munsey was heard in the district court today on a complaint made by James Peavey, a barber on Maplewood avenue, on Tuesday. Peavey claimed that he left his shop for a few minutes and on returning, saw Munsey coming out of the door. He asked if he wished for anything but received no reply. After getting inside he found $2 missing and chased Munsey to the veteran firemen headquarters where he demanded the missing money. Munsey informed him that he had none of his money and paid no attention to the demand. Later Peavey claimed he did some detective work and saw the man spending money in a saloon. He was then arrested on suspicion.

Munsey in the court today claimed he was spending his own cash and that he had not been inside the barber shop that day. That the barber was libeling under a false impression and there was no reason for his arrest. The court continued the case for sentence, providing Munsey give up the $2 to the barber.

The horse case against T. H. McCue was put over again until this afternoon owing to the non-arrival of witnesses from York Beach and North

IN THE GRASP OF A STORM

North East Snow Storm Follows the Coast and this Section Gets a Taste of Real Winter

The person who predicted an open winter, evidently miscalculated as when the residents of this city and vicinity awoke this morning they found a white mantle of snow covering the ground to a depth of six or eight inches.

The storm was a genuine north-easter and followed the coast, doing much more severe in this city than farther inland.

The storm began early Tuesday evening and progressed in any towards morning and did not abate much until 9 o'clock this morning.

A high wind accompanied the down-fall of snow and in consequence caused it to drift badly in places.

The storm to the eastward was more severe and at Kittery Point and York nearly a foot of snow was reported as having fallen.

On the Atlantic Shore Street Railroad the storm delayed the running schedule and up to 12 o'clock no car had come through from York Beach, nor any mail received from the intervening points.

On the Portsmouth Street Railroad the big plow was started at 4 o'clock and the snow was cleared from the trolley line and the loops so that the cars on the early morning trips were only about ten minutes off their regular time. The principal trouble was experienced on the Christian Shore loop, where the ice caused by the recent break in the winter main, together with the fall of snow caused the railroad traction considerable trouble as well as delay.

On the Boston & Maine Railroad, five snow plows were sent out early in the morning one coming to this city from Portland and one going from here to Salem on this branch. As a result of the early clearing of the tracks very little delay resulted. The first train from Walboro in charge of Conductor Colbath came in only ten minutes late.

Owing to the severity of the storm in this city the "no school" signal was sounded at 7:45 for a suspension of all of the schools in the city.

Hampton who were unable to be at the hearing this forenoon. Samuel W. Emery will represent McCue in the case and E. L. Gupthill will look after the case for Mr. Hatcher.

State Park Speedway, was sold yesterday by Mr. Hayes to J. W. Norton of Kearsarge, Me., who it is understood will campaign here this winter.

BOSTON & MAINE GETS OUT PLOWS

Six in Operation on Portland
Division Today.

The Portland division of the Boston & Maine was obliged to get out its snow plow for the first time this winter. Six plows were in operation between Portland and Dover, Dover and Lawrence, Portsmouth and Portland, and the Conway branch. The storm however, did not affect the train service in any great extent and the passenger lines made good time throughout the day.

NEW MOVE IN FARMER CASE

Petition Filed for Appointment of G. E. Hammond as Guardian and to
Have Miss Farmer
Adjudged Insane.

Counsel for George E. Hammond and the relatives of Miss Sarah J. Farmer, who is at present confined in a local sanitarium have made a new move, by the petitioning of Judge of Probate Louis G. Hoyt to have Mr. Hammond appointed guardian of Miss Farmer in New Hampshire and also have her adjudged insane.

Today Judge Hoyt appointed Dr. E. B. Sandman, Charles W. Hannaford and Willis D. Walker a commission to examine Miss Farmer as to her sanity. They will make their report at a hearing to be held in this city on Tuesday, February 10. In the meantime the other petition for the appointment of Miss Mary B. Sanford of New York as guardian will be held open.

It is said that notwithstanding the petition of Mr. Hammond to be appointed guardian in this state, it is optional with Judge Hoyt whether he appoints Miss Sanford or Mr. Hammond as guardian, whether Miss Farmer is adjudged insane or not.

FOUND NO TRACE OF THE PRESCOTT PALMER

The cutters Gresham and Andros-coggin, sent in search of the missing five master Prescott Palmer, have failed to find the schooner after cruising 200 miles off the coast. It is now generally conceded that disaster has befallen the Palmer.

There is still hope, however, that the 13 men composing the crew of the vessel are safe. The vessel must have been close to the trans-Atlantic steamship track and the men, if compelled to abandon her, may have been picked up by some liner bound to Liverpool. The Arctic left here Jan.

13, and she should reach Queenstown tomorrow. Her arrival is anxiously awaited, as it is believed she may have the crew of the Palmer on board. The Prescott Palmer was last reported passing Highland Light before noon Jan. 12. She was bound from Norfolk for Portsmouth, with 1000 tons of coal. It is believed that in the freezing gale she took up so badly that her pumps became ice-fettered and that she sprang a leak and foundered.

Tuesday evening the revenue cutters reported that there was no trace of the schooner.

TAFT AS TEACHER.

Carries His Smile to the Classroom, But Students Soon Find He's an Exacting Instructor.

Radiating from that "easy substantial smile" which has become internationally famous, is the kindly spirit of Prof. William Howard Taft, as he surveys the class of barristers-to-be, who assemble twice a week at the Yale Law School for the study of Constitutional law.

In the classroom, as on almost every occasion, Taft's ubiquitous smile is so vast and generous, his face beaming with such good humor, his cheerfulness and exuberance are so contagious, that one finds rows of happy faces reflected back upon him. Altogether informal in his manner, sincere in his endeavor to assist, lofty in his ideals, and ever ready with an appropriate little joke, it is easy to understand the earnestness of the students in their work.

Mr. Taft is familiarly conversant with the theory that you can make a man remember his work in two ways. A successful one is to get a student on his feet and play him with questions. Before the ex-President has let his victim go, that one won't very quickly forget what the grout man has taught him. Lack of time prevents this plan on an extensive scale. Consequently, another is resorted to—namely, serving the "meat" of the subject to the students in sugar-coated pill fashion. This Prof. Taft does in great style by either giving them the gist of the matter in some witty little phrase or saying, or, more generally, by brightening up an obscure point with a nicely applied joke.

From the first time when Prof. Taft told his class that "we shall study the subject together" to the time when his facetiousness had set them roaring, have his pleasantries been echoed broadcast by the students.

In explaining the clause in the Constitution, "No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed," Prof. Taft, speaking in reference to the latter part of it, said: "An ex post facto law is a retroactive one applying only to criminal laws affecting punishment after the act has been committed. So you see man has a vested right to be hanged rather than shot."

Several students had been called on to explain what a bill of attainder was, and the nearest the men came to it was that such a bill worked a forfeiture in case of treason or felony of all the lands, tenements and hereditaments of the accused. Taft, indifferently looking over his glasses at the class, suggested that such a bill "takes the head as well as the body."

An interesting fact that the ex-President brought out was that Thomas Jefferson prepared for Patrick Henry a paper attacking and directing to shoot at sight a robber or bandit. The draft, however, was never passed, and it was this same Thomas Jefferson who was such an advocate of the clause in the Constitution that no person be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor that any person be deprived of the equal protection of the laws.

The ex-President has his students rise to recite. He said he regretted very much that counsel in court were not made to stand on their feet when questioning a witness and added that not only does this not appear in keeping with the dignity of the court, but that it leads to slovenly thinking.

Prof. Taft is absorbingly interested in his work and so concentrated in his teaching that at several recitations he went beyond the allotted 50 minutes before he realized that the time had flown. The next recitation found him as usual amplifying the statements of the Constitution by a wealth of knowledge, and he had interestingly discoursed for some time when he noticed that he had gone beyond the hour. Turning from the clock to the class with an expansive and rapidly-broadening smile, he said, with a twinkle in his eye: "That reminds me. Whenever I come home from an affair my wife always asks me, 'Did you have a nice time?' and when I answer 'Yes,' she adds, 'You must have been doing all the talking.'"

Prof. Taft is a very exacting instructor, and although he is always ready to lend a helping hand, he requires and sees to it that the students do their work. He has already given his class two exams, "to see how sympathetic they are with the subject." This is an unusual thing at the Law School, where one exam is given at the completion of a subject, generally at the end of the year. Before the last exams he told his students to take certain cases to their souls, know them like their "Ten Commandments" and Bible, or even better. At the first few recitations of the course several men in response to their names answered "unprepared." Prof. Taft's smile vanished as he vehemently said: "You thought this business of studying the Constitution a cinch. Let me tell you, if you don't study your lessons you will regret it at the time of examinations. If you cram them, you won't be saturated with the subject. It will pass away the next day. Gentlemen, your professors and instructors are not half as severe with you as your clients will be." His smile, which had temporarily departed, began to creep back as he added:

"No, sir. Your clients will be much more unreasonable. They will object if you go out to lunch with the counsel of the other side." Then the benevolent spirit of the great man expressed itself, when he feelingly added, "Gentlemen, I say all this in a spirit of friendliness, with a desire to help you. If your lessons are too long say so. If you don't understand your lesson, read it anyway. Then you will ask questions."

Article II, Section 4, of the United States Constitution contains the oath of office of the President. Prof. Taft, when taking up this section said he was reminded of a humorous situation when he took the oath of office. "The oath is: 'I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President, etc., etc.'"

Mr. Taft said that Chief Justice Fuller of the Supreme Court Bench in administering the oath to him said "faithfully execute the Constitution." "I went in just the same," said Taft. "I hope I didn't commit an assault on it."

Prof. Taft is always ready to make the lot of his students as easy as possible. Hence, when a decision of Justice Washington's was up for consideration, he, knowing the difficulty they encountered, said "I know, gentlemen, that when taking up a decision of Justice Washington, I, myself, can't help feeling weary in advance. It is a task on one's patience, although as a lover of fine distinctions, Justice Washington was not like his brother George."

Great effect is given to Prof. Taft's jokes by his delightful rendition of them. When the time is ripe for an entertaining story, which generally has a good bit of law intermixed, one is given ample time to get into the spirit of it. The class is discussing some point when Mr. Taft slowly lowers his massive head, and characteristically peers above his glasses. He slowly removes them and synchronously with this operation appears a slowly broadening smile. His good-natured countenance is soon wreathed in smiles as he proceeds with the pleasing anecdote. Unconsciously the faces of the students begin to follow suit. Generally when he reaches the climax Prof. Taft breaks out into a robust laugh, and continues the story in the midst of it. The class, the reason they know not, are laughing before they hear the point and when it forcibly does come they are roaring.—New Haven Register.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Grandma's Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell

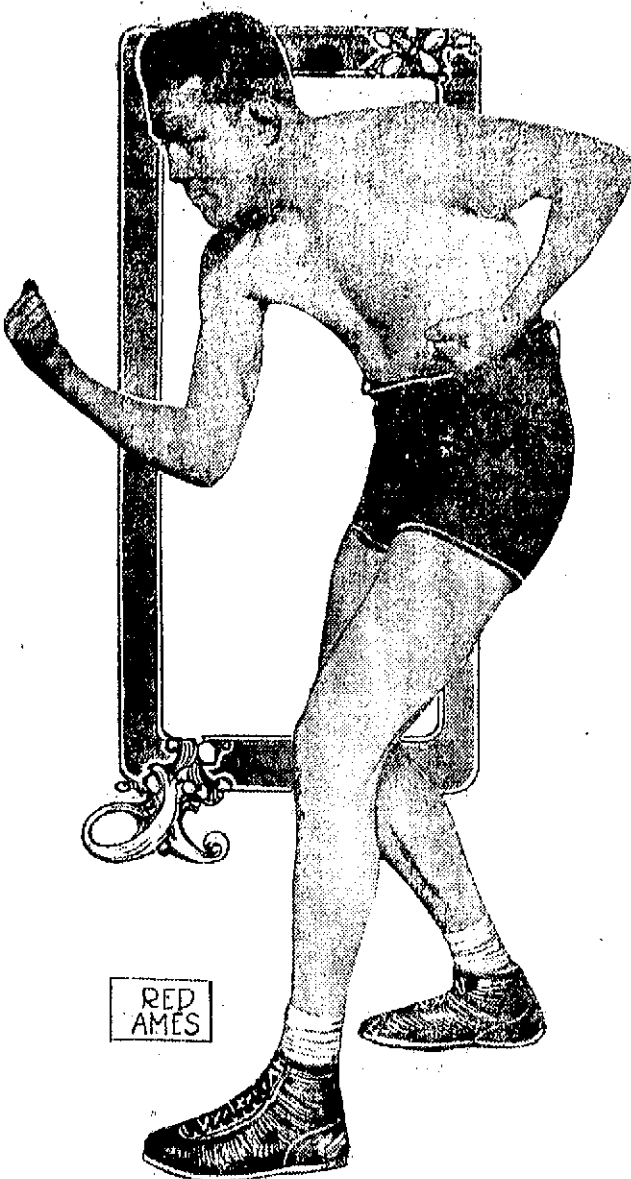

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for Weyb's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 1 cent.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

ENJOYED SLEIGH RIDE

True Blue Class of Pearl-St. Church Have Pleasant Time.

The True Blue Class of the Pearl-street church enjoyed a sleigh ride party on Tuesday evening. About twenty gathered at the home of Mrs. Plumer, the teacher, on Manwood avenue at 7 o'clock, and although it was snowing, enjoyed the ride, which was through Ite and back to the church vestry. Here, other members of the Sunday school had a bunch awaiting them, to which all did ample justice. After refreshments were served a general good time was enjoyed by all. At 10.30 they took the invited guests to their respective homes and all gave three rousing cheers for Mrs. Plumer and the True Blues.

The class is under obligations to Mr. Charles Badger, who so kindly loaned them the use of the sleigh, which was drawn by the famous mules (which went just like horses) and were driven by the president of the class, Mr. Philip Ham, ably assisted by Mr. Paul Badger, secretary of the class.

OBEYING INSTRUCTIONS

It was the busiest part of the day at the railway station, says Mr. W. Harvey in "Irish Life and Humor," and Michael Flynn, the newest porter rushed up to the incoming train.

"Change here!" he cried. "Change for Limerick and Wexford!"

"But the lynx eyed station master was at hand, and he descended upon Michael.

"Haven't I told you before," he said "to sing out the names of the stations clearly and distinctly? Bear it in mind. Sing them out!"

"I will sir," replied the boy, and when the next train came in, the passengers were considerably astonished to hear the voice of Michael calling:

Sweet dromedary faces,
Passing to and fro,
Change here for Limerick,
Galway, and Mayo!"

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE
SCORES ANOTHER SUCCESS

Present the Cathedral Choir to Large Audience at New Methodist Church.

The Epworth League connected with the First Methodist church, scored another big success on Tuesday evening, when they presented to an audience that filled the church the Cathedral Choir, in a program that was pleasing to the most critical lover of good music. This organization, who are striving to raise the debt from their new church, are also creating a reputation for themselves in the quality of the talent which they present to the public in their entertainment and the attraction of last evening was a notable addition to their list.

As stated the concert was given in their new church and despite the storm, it was crowded and everybody were greatly pleased with the concert. The personnel of the Cathedral Choir is as follows:

Helen Doethelt, soprano; Edna Palmer, soprano; Claude Sauer, tenor; Paul Smithson, tenor; Ellen May Wright, contralto; Blanche Baxter, contralto; Herbert Bailey, bass-baritone; Victor Benjamin, baritone (and manager); Herbert Johnson, pianist.

The choir opened with the Festival Te Deum in E flat and this beautiful work of Dudley Buck was sung with a dignity and power that made a fine opening. Another notable number of the program was from Gounod's Faust and here the choir showed their ability to handle master pieces.

As a matter of fact it is hard to select any part of the program for special mention for it was all splendidly rendered, all of the solos and duets were sung well and the choruses were especially fine.

A very pleasing number was the piano solo by Mr. Johnson, "The Second Hungarian Rhapsody," for he was in addition to his fine technique, wonderful expression.

The following was the very excellent program.

PART ONE.

Chorus--Festival Te Deum in E flat
Dudley Buck
Contralto Solo--Selected. Miss Baxter

Chorus--Softly Floating on the Air

Reading--That Sweet Story of Old West

Mr. Bailey.

PART TWO.

Trio and Final. . . . .Chorus

Solo parts by Miss Doethelt, Mr. Sauer, and Mr. Benjamin.

The next number in the Epworth League course is on February 27th when Montavilla Flowers delivers one of his Life Lectures with illustrated acting. Mr. Flowers is known as one of the greatest and most attractive lecturers on the byeway platform. He is not only a great reader, a splendid actor, but he is all of these combined. Probably those who are familiar with the success which has hitherto attended the efforts of the Epworth League to give the best there is, will be glad to avail themselves of the privilege of hearing Mr. Flowers.

DANIELS WOULD ASK FOR BIDS ON BATTLESHIPS ABROAD

Washington, Jan. 20.—Certain coincidences regarding the division of battleship construction contracts among shipbuilding companies in the United States have attracted the attention of Secretary Daniels. It is probable that he will make the same kind of an investigation into this subject that he did into the alleged combination of armor plate manufacturers. Mr. Daniels satisfied himself long ago that there was an understanding among the armor-plate and steel-projectile makers and took such action toward getting competitive bidding as resulted in much lower prices.

He is now wondering if a similar understanding prevails among the four principal shipyards in which the modern battleships for the navy, with the exception of those built at the navy yards, have been constructed. These companies are the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, the New York Shipbuilding Company, William Cramp & Sons Company and the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company. Mr. Daniels considers that the division of the work among these firms in the last ten years or so has been quite remarkable. According to his information all have shared about alike in the matter of contracts in the long run. While Secretary Daniels is making no charges, he is inclined to believe that the situation is worth investigating. As a result of his suspicions, however, it is reported that the secretary favors opening to foreign shipbuilders the bidding for American warship contracts, in order to force greater competition.

LITERARY NOTES

February Century.

The "new spirit of the century" is manifest in the Midwinter Fiction Number (February) of The Century

Magazine, which contains no less than seven short stories. "The Temple of the Countless Gods" is a love story of Japan by John Luther Long, author of "Madam Butterfly." "Mother" is by Lawrence Perry. "What a Woman Wants" by Caroline Duer, "That Affair of the Boots" by Henry S. Watson, "Shadows" by George Branson-Howard, "The New Nest" by Katharine Holland Brown, "The Last War in the World" by H. C. Wells is a flight of imagination that is also a powerful indictment against war.

Among the serious articles are an authoritative study of the situation in Mexico under the title "The Mexican Menace," by Morgan Shuster, author of "The Strangling of Persia," etc.; "The Heart of India," by B. F. Benson, author of "The Relentless City," etc.; "Racial Consequences of Immigration," part of Prof. Edward A. Ross's important series, and "New Hope for the Convict," a constructive article by Richard Barry; "The Boy Who Goes Wrong," by H. Addington Bruce, "Creole Heavies and Some Passionate Pilgrims" is an illustrated article by Julius Muller about a picturesque part of the world, "The Theatre of Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow," the first magazine article ever written by Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the great English actor. There is room in the many pages of The Century for a number of poems, including Percy Mackaye's bird masque, called "The Sanctuary," which was given a few months ago at Cornhill, N. H. The magazine is topped off with ten pages of varied comedy in the department "In Lighter Vein."

"Pape's Diapiesin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia, and Stomach Misery in Five Minutes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach, or lies like a lump of lead refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes. Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly-printed on these fifty cent cases of Pape's Diapiesin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Pape's Diapiesin is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This day will have many Pape's Diapiesin cranks as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation too, if you ever try it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

SUNDAY SERVICE--WENTWORTH HOME.

The pastors of the various churches have kindly taken turns in Sunday services at the Mark H. Wentworth Home, giving to those who are "shut in" there a monthly visit, which is always delightful. These services are highly appreciated. Last Sunday they were visited by the pastor and choir of the Court street Christian church. Rev. Percy W. Caswell conducted the service, his reading of the 5th chapter of Matthew gave a very effective rendering of what he designed as an ever old, ever new, discourse of the Saviour, and to which his eminent vocal ability added a new charm. His voice also lent in the singing by the choir, which consisted of Misses Lucinda Joy soprano, Marion Martin and Gladys Randall alto; Othmaro Ham, bass; Wesley Downing tenor, Miss Ella Conard, pianist. They sang "Somebody Cares," "Jesus for Me" and a duet by Miss Joy and the pastor "God will Take Care of You." The short sermon by Rev. Mr. Caswell was particularly appropriate and very effective. He has a rare faculty of bringing his subject home to his hearers.

JEROME THREATENS
JUDGE ALDRICH WITH FEDERAL PRESSURE

New York, Jan. 20.—Pressure may be brought to bear through the federal department of Justice upon Judge Aldrich before he gives a hearing on Harry K. Thaw's habeas corpus petition, William Travers Jerome today declared here.

He said that at the conference, he, Governor Glynn and Attorney General Carmody held to discuss the case, the possibility of appealing to the Department of Justice was taken up.

The particular point upon which the Department of Justice would be asked to exert influence was the information of Judge Aldrich that he would take under consideration the question of the "good faith" of New York state in the Thaw extradition proceedings.

"It looks to us as though Judge Aldrich thinks he can arraign the state of New York at the bar of his court and inquire into our motives and purposes in seeking the extradition of Thaw," said Mr. Jerome.

"It seems to us this would be an usurpation of power by federal courts entirely unjustifiable under the Constitution of the United States, and would tend to destroy the good feeling among the several states of the Union. It would be a precedent which might lead various states in extradition proceedings to inquire into the question of good faith."

"The possibility of Judge Aldrich taking such a course was considered by Attorney General Carmody and myself to involve a matter so grave that we have discussed the propriety of submitting the whole matter to the Department of Justice at Washington for such action as may be deemed wise and proper."

NAVY YARD WORKMEN
OBJECT TO SECOND BALLOT

Following a meeting held at the Brooklyn navy yard last week, at which the employees and workmen resolved absolutely to ignore the ballot which Commandant Albert C. Gleaves wishes taken on the question of furlough, on which the men claim they have already expressed a decided opinion, the delegates to the Central Labor Union held a meeting with a view to carrying the whole question to the Naval Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives for adjustment.

On October 30th last the workmen in the yard were asked to vote on two propositions, the first of which favored discharge of employees in slack seasons, and the second provided for furloughs by rotation. The results of this vote, in spite of continued requests on the part of the men, have never been made public by the commandant. It is claimed, however, that the second proposition was carried by an overwhelming vote something in the neighborhood of 20 to 1.

Under such circumstances the men resent being asked to vote again on the identical propositions which were put to them less than two months ago.

"We are all in favor of the furlough by rotation, which means that every man, in slack seasons, will be laid off one day a week regularly in rotation," said one of the yard workmen in a recent interview. "This gives every one an equal chance. We indicated our vote on this only a short time ago. There is absolutely no doubt that it was carried."

The men hope, by ignoring the ballot, to get a ruling on the subject from the Civil Service Commission which, they believe, should make the laws governing the workmen.

In issuing his request for the second vote, the commandant says: "After the previous vote on the above subject, a committee of workmen interviewed the commandant and later the special board appointed by the commandant. As the result, it appeared that the effect of the vote would be very different from what the men thought, and it is accordingly desired to take another vote on the same propositions as before."

When the yard workmen voted on these propositions some weeks ago they stuck a poster on the ballot, favoring not only the second proposition. It was stated, but also the furlough equalization of all men in each department, to include those in the supervisory capacities such as the progress and planning departments.

The yard workmen do not favor the efficiency systems which the commandant's office has installed to supervise the work. They claim that this system is elaborate and that it increases the cost of the yard's work which makes it difficult to bid for jobs in an open market, where such systems are not employed.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that since Commandant Gleaves has been in command, the installation of the progress and planning systems has worked out to keep the various jobs in the yard systematized and tended to increase the speed with which the jobs are completed.

MILK, CREAM, BUTTER AND CHEESE SHOW

The Granite State Dairymen's Association, in connection with its 25th annual meeting, will hold in Concord, on Feb. 11-12, the largest dairy show ever held in the state of New Hampshire. Every dairy farmer whether a member of the association or not is invited to exhibit his products, place them in competition with his neighbors' products and participate in the large number of premiums and prizes offered. Five silver cups are competed for. $200 is offered in cash prizes besides many valuable premiums, such as mantle clocks, carving set, barrels of washing powder, etc.

Someone asks why you should send milk, cream, butter or cheese to the Dairymen's Association Show. Because you want to know how your product compares with other peoples' products. If it is better than theirs you ought to have more money for it. You will have the benefit of an expert, disinterested judge to score your product. For entry blanks, premium list and detailed information in regard to making exhibits, write to Fred Rasmussen, Sec., Durham, N. H.

ECONOMICAL HANDBAG

"I want you to see my lovely new shopping bag," said a certain lady caller the afternoon. "My husband gave it to me for my birthday, and it's simply grand! And it's so economical! You see you open this, and there are two compartments; and you open the compartments on this side, and there is a little pocket in each, and you open the little pocket, and there is a little little pocketbook for change with the two partioned off for the street car tickets. "I see, said the caller. But why do you call it economical?"

"Why it takes so long to open all the things, and get to your street car tickets that by the time you do, whoever is with you has paid your fare.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

EDUCATIONAL FRATERNITY
ORGANIZED LAST NIGHT

In response to over two hundred invitations, local students of the International Correspondence School, met in Grand Army Hall last evening and organized what will be known as the Portsmouth Chapter of the I. C. S. Fraternity of the World, which has a membership of 14,000 members in the United States and Canada alone.

The students enjoyed the privilege of hearing an address by W. C. Gould, Supreme Registrar of the I. C. S. Fraternity of the World. Mr. Gould who came direct from Scranton, Pa., spoke at length on the objects and advantages of the Fraternity.

The object of this Fraternity will be for mutual improvement, to cultivate the study habit, to render assistance in all matters to I. C. S. students, and provide facilities for social intercourse and pleasure of the membership, and in every way to forward the aims and objects of the I. C. S. In fact, this fraternity is to the I. C. S. man what the college fraternity is to the college student.

The following officers were elected:

President—George L. Alexander.
First Vice President—John F. Culham.
Second Vice President—W. O. Twombly.
Secretary—Howard B. Proctor.
Treasurer—Barrie D. Jenkins.
Executive Committee—Ernest Brown, H. E. Ayers, Lester W. Newell, Leslie E. Davis, C. A. Phillips, Paul Kivnan.

SHIPS TO BE UNSINKABLE.

Admiral Capps' Plan Adopted by London Convention.

London, Jan. 20.—December 14, 1914, is the time limit set for acceptance by the various countries concerned in the convention drawn up an unanimously adopted by the Division Committee of the International Conference on safety at sea, which practically concluded its labors at the British foreign office tonight. If the treaty is approved it will go into effect July 1, 1915.

Among the proposals accepted by the conference was Rear-Admiral Washington L. Capps' system of making ships, so far as practicable, unsinkable. The American naval officer's plan divides a ship into side and crosswise compartments, each water-tight. The closing session of the conference tomorrow will be addressed by Lord Mersey, president of the conference; Sydney C. Buxton, president of the British Board of Trade; U. S. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois; Prof. A. D. Alexander, of Washington, and M. Gignier, of France.

THIS IS INTERESTING

The very latest thing in electric lamps is made, shade and all, of rattan. Two of this material has just been placed in the office windows on Pleasant street of the Rockingham Light and Power Co., where they are attracting the public attention of hundreds of passers.

The beauty of the design and workmanship is apparent both day and night, but when lighted is surely becomes a positive and remarkable attraction and would grace any office or home.

The industrial workers in our public schools, especially those engaged in rail and raffle work should take a look at this latest accomplishment in the art, especially as the specimens described above were designed and manufactured in this city.

Odd Accident to Little Danbury, Conn., Boy Who Has Been Reported Missing.

Danbury, Conn., Jan. 20.—The body of Harold Gustafson, four years old, who had been missing from his home since yesterday morning, was found today under a heavy barn door, which had fallen on him. The boy was apparently smothered in his bed, and was found in a slide down hill, when the accident occurred. His neck was broken.

SAVACOLLE ELECTED

Manchester Chamber of Commerce Has a Stormy Session Last Evening.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 20.—The Chamber of Commerce held its annual meeting tonight with an attendance of 62 members. (Walter H. Underwood presided.)

There was a stormy session over the election of a secretary. The nominating committee reported only one nomination for secretary, that of William Savacolle. At the last moment Charles A. Shannon, who led the opposition to Mr. Savacolle, presented the name of Edgar J. Knowlton, whom Mr. Knowlton was not an applicant for the place. The vote resulted 16 to 24 in favor of Mr. Savacolle. Mr. Shannon made his nomination unanimous.

During the afternoon Mr. Savacolle was charged with having devoted the time which belonged to the Chamber of Commerce to leasing property for himself and for others with whom he was associated and raising rents.

Big and Small Farms.

At an agricultural meeting held recently at Springfield, Mass., which was participated in by the state board of agriculture and numerous agricultural societies, one of the speakers was Prof. C. F. Warren of the New York Agricultural college at Ithaca, who advocated large farms. He said the minimum sized farm for efficiency should support four horses, with other things to correspond, and that with less than that equipment it is not possible to make the most advantageous use of modern farm tools. He said that on the one-man farm business stops when the man goes to town, and that the percentage of boys leaving small farms for the cities is much larger than those going from the large farms.

There is some basis for the professor's contentions, yet it must not be inferred that the only profitable farm in these days is the large farm. There are different kinds of farming, and some men on a few acres are clearing more money every year than others are making on large farms. Sheep or dairy farming is one thing; raising small fruits, garden truck and chickens is quite another. It may be that the Springfield speaker did not include these things under the head of farming, but they properly belong there, even though not more than five acres form the basis of operations.

As a rule, the production per acre is larger on small farms than on large ones, for the simple reason that the small farm receives better care. What are known as intensive methods are applied and every foot of ground is made to do its best, while comparatively few large farms are worked to capacity.

There is no doubt that, in the New England states at least, small farms are paying better today as a general thing than large ones. Too many men who attempt to farm on a large scale run carelessly over too much ground, banking on the number of their acres for returns rather than on proper cultivation, with the result that the profit per acre is small. The big farm is all right when properly worked, but when not properly handled it is no match for the small farm that is managed as it should be.

The Secretary's Position.

That was good news that this paper gave the navy yard workmen on Tuesday. This newspaper believes that Secretary Daniels is going to make good in every way. He is honest and is proving to be a man with ideas of his own. No man has held the office of secretary for years who has possessed a better grasp of things than he. Mr. Daniels realizes what a powerful combination he is up against in running the navy department and he is making good progress. He will make good in every way if he is given half a chance.

Only One Word Necessary.

Much is being said about the President calling a halt on the introduction of the spoils system. This is a joke. One word from the President would stop the raid now being made in the internal revenue offices. These men were all in the classified service.

Let no one be disturbed by the prediction that if eugenics is taught in the public schools the race will die out in 150 years. More than 40 years ago it was declared that if the traffic in alcoholic liquors was not stopped the nation would perish before this time, but the traffic wasn't stopped, and there are a whole lot of us left yet.

The business men of the country are far from being satisfied with the outlook and in spite of all predictions to the contrary, soup houses and municipal lodging houses are the order of the day in the big cities. Let us hope that the worst is over.

Cardinal O'Connell sees in the life of today, much that he terms the "modern fads of a new paganism." Regardless of what it may be called, there is altogether too much which is neither lovely nor of good report.

The 107th anniversary of the birth of General Robert E. Lee, was celebrated Monday in the South. He was a great Virginian and a great American, in spite of the fact that he was on the wrong side in the war between the States.

President Wilson takes an optimistic view of the business outlook. It may be that to some extent "the wish is father to the thought," yet there is no reason to believe that business is going to the dogs.

Our friends in Manchester will discover before many months that politicians do not make good Board of Trade managers—when they use their offices for political purposes.

Clearing Away Wreckage Left In Path of West Virginia Flood.

The destructive flood following the breaking of the Stony river dam near Dobbin, W. Va., cost many thousands of dollars' worth of property. Scores of lives were saved by a farmer, who rode twenty miles through the night to Schell to give warning of the breaking of the dam. He is J. C. Hamilton, who lives in the mountains above the dam. From Schell the warning was spread from town to town along the river by a signal brigade of telephone girls organized by the residents for just such an emergency.

BASHFUL VICTIMS OF THIEVES.

People Who Are Robbed and Conceal Their Loss.

Most people suppose that the police get word of the greater number of instances of robbery, petty thieving and pocket picking. This is far from being the case. In fact social investigators report that with a large class of people there is a decided aversion to informing the police of a loss.

A great many seem to shrink from making a formal complaint. When escorted to the station-house for the purpose they turn red, nervously shuffle about and act as though they wished they were 100 miles away. The fact that they have been robbed seems to be a secondary consideration compared with having the eyes of their neighbors as well as the police turned on them.

A railroad terminal detective recently declared that it was lucky for him that there were people too bashful to complain of their losses or he and his associates would have a hard time of it. There is no doubt there is a great deal of pocket picking in the trains of the subway. The crowded conditions make it a paradise for the light-fingered. Many a shopper when she opens her handbag to get her purse finds it gone. Some shoppers, it is true, make a loud complaint. Others realize at once that there is little use of complaining about what has happened in such a jam, and they do not.

Recently an electrical contractor from West Virginia paid a visit to New York and went to a theatre near Forty-second street on Broadway. Between acts he went to a cafe. It was one of the brightest spots on Broadway. All the West Virginians knew two minutes after he entered the cafe was that he was on the floor with a man trying to help him up. He was told he had slipped. He was bruised by the fall and went to a nearby club. There he found that his watch and $50 had been taken from him.

Did he tell the police? Not at all. He was going to carry the experience back to Virginia with him and look it up in his remembrance. He happened to tell a friend the next day. It was all the friend could do to drag him to police headquarters and make his loss known. The watch was recovered.

A short time ago a Bronx man and his wife returned from the theatre to find that their hat had been entered and about $50 worth of property stolen. They sat down, talked it over, pictured the detectives coming in and the robbery getting into the paper and they decided to keep still about it.

"We better pass it up," said the man after the conference was over, "the publicity will be more bothersome than the loss." And his wife agreed with him.

Sometimes there is a human nature reason for keeping still about a loss. There's a certain detective of the city police force who took his wife on an all-day automobile ride on his day off a short time ago. When they got home Mrs. Detective went to a clothes closet to change her street gown for a kimono. She screamed with astonishment. Her wardrobe had been cleaned out.

Did the detective say anything about it? Not at all. And he enjoined the strictest secrecy on his wife. "If there's any searching to be done I'll do it outside of the department," he said. Up to now the clothes have not been recovered.

Many who drop coins in cabs or restaurants turn red and absolutely refuse to hunt for the rolling piece of silver. Men have been known to forget to wait or take their change at subway ticket offices and refuse to go back and inquire for what is rightfully theirs. Barber-shop thieves are common. Many a new hat has been taken and an old one left in its place while the rightful owner was being drowsily lulled. And in many instances when the exchange was discovered the owner looked furtively about to see if others noticed the change and hurried out before he attracted attention.—New York Sun.

BANANA FRUIT CREAM

Send half a pint of thick cream to the upper part of the double boiler, add a tiny pinch of salt, half a cupful of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Meanwhile mash to a paste four large ripe bananas—the red variety if possible—add to them a few grains of salt, half a teaspoonful of lemon juice, half a pint of stiffly whipped cream and one tablespoonful of powdered sugar. When the scalded cream is cold, fold in the banana and cream mixture, and turn into a chilled freezer. Mix in when the cream is half frozen half a cupful of Marshmallow cordial and a small cupful of chopped Marshmallow cherries. Continue freezing until firm and smooth. Serve in high crystal glasses garnished with chopped candied pineapple.

Tax Assessor, John Yanwood and wife, who have been visiting in Orléans, Can., will not arrive home until the last of the week.

FROST FAMILY HOLD REUNION

J. Fred Frost of Belmont Acts as Toastmaster at Banquet in Boston.

The 10th annual banquet of the Frost Family Association of America was held last evening at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, with President J. Fred Frost of Belmont as toastmaster. The speakers were Thomas J. Frost of Chelsea, Harrison L. Harrington of Boston, Lloyd C. Frost of Cambridge, and Rev. Dr. Coker of Waverley. Miss Mary Frost of Nashua, N. H., and Miss Louise West of Boston gave recitations.

Among letters read was one from Dr. William Goodell Frost, president of Berea College.

Mrs. Harriet E. Porter of Beverly, who is more than 80 years old, read an original poem written for the occasion, and the historian Norman S. Frost, of Pelham, California, sent a valuable contribution of records. Others present were John E. Frost, Mrs. J. Frederick Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Frost, Mrs. Hattie Frost, Thomas B. Frost, Mary A. Frost, Mrs. Frank L. Blackford, Mrs. Frank J. Frost, Marion P. Wright, Grace Frost Kerr, Ed E. Frost, Emma V. Frost, Rose M. Harrington, George Frost, Mrs. Addie E. Frost, Alice M. ## PANAMA CANAL

About 2,500 employees will be required. Our Atlantic seaports are 400 miles nearer Australia.

Freight will be charged $1.20 a ton; passengers are free.

The rates charged vessels are the same as those at Suez.

The cost of operating the canal will exceed $4,000,000 annually.

Time required to go through the canal, from 10 to 12 hours.

American coastwise ships may pass through canal free of all charges.

The distance to the Philippine Islands is not reduced materially.

Masted 270 ton floating cranes will handle wrecks or accidents in the canal or locks.

The canal will save 8,000 miles between New York and San Francisco.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has jurisdiction over canal traffic.

The government will monopolize the business of supplying coal and provisions and operating repair facilities.

To pay interest on the investment and operating expenses, approximately $15,000,000 revenue per annum will be needed.

Warships of all nations may pass through the canal, but cannot linger more than 24 hours at either end in time of war.

Great drydocks, wharves, warehouses, repair shops and other facilities, to cost $20,000,000 are under construction.

Storage for 450,000 tons of coal maximum capacity, is provided. Normal storage capacity, 37,000 tons. Oil, 160,000 barrels.

Bulk products like wheat, lumber, minerals, wool, hides and skins, will get lower freight rates through the canal from Pacific ports.

Staple products of the south—cotton, iron, coal, lumber and ship supplies—will have similar advantage to the Orient and Pacific ports—Leslie's Weekly.

CURRENT OPINION

BE A TALOSOPHER; MAKE ALL HAPPY.

Tell your wife at breakfast how you enjoy her fluffy biscuit and watch her smile. She will soon begin to see merit in you that had passed unnoticed before.

If the coffee is a trifle muddy remember that no one made it that way on purpose. Saying that it is muddy will give you unhappy thoughts. Forget it.

Don't let rudeness get on your nerves. If you do you can't have an unruffled mind for business or the calmness requisite for good digestion. Therefore ignore it. Don't see it and don't think of it.

If in your walks you see a policeman, a motorman or any one else do something you approve get his name, send it to headquarters, and the league will write a letter of commendation to his employers that may help him.

Ignore rudeness and become appreciative and courteous. Instead of finding fault, study the art of making happiness epidemic.—William Vernon Backus, of Appreciative League of New York.

OBITUARY

Edmund Emery Smith.

Edmund Emery Smith, who was buried at Candia yesterday, was born in that town, Aug. 20, 1830, and was therefore 83 years old at his death, which occurred in the same room where he was born. Mr. Smith was a lumber expert and the farm which he took over upon the death of his eldest brother, Charles Cogswell Smith, is said to be the best farm in Candia today as it was then, and consists of over three hundred acres. He was a very active and enterprising man, widely known over a large region, and yet he was so modest and unassuming that only time will reveal the depth of the mark he made. He was much beloved by the people of his town and popular with all who knew him. It was his custom to annually attend the Sherbrooke fair and always to invite a few friends to make the trip with him at his expense. Though it fell to him to remain at home and care for his parents with merely academy courses at Pinkerton, Pembroke and (Hiramston), he bore a no less noble if less conspicuous part in that educational accomplishment which distinguished his family and helped to give Candia the fame it has long had as a nursery of scholars, by his efforts with purse and otherwise to keep his younger brothers and sisters at school and college. His brothers, Charles Cogswell, Alvah A. and Abram, all died before him as well as two of his four sisters. His wife died two years ago, but he left one daughter, Mrs. George A. Currier of Derry and two sons, George Ellis Smith of Candia and Charles S. Smith of Boston, besides another son, Henry Cogswell, who died some twenty years ago. Charles Cogswell Smith of this city was a nephew. The deceased was a great admirer of Portsmouth and particularly enjoyed a recent stay here when he served upon a local jury.

Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. Two sizes, 25c and 50c, at all stores.

BURGLARS GET HEAVY HAUL

Obtain $10,000 in Jewels by
York.

New York, Jan. 20.—Jewelry valued at $10,000 by Frederick Young, owner of a little uptown jewelry store, was taken from the store early today in what the police consider one of the most novel burglaries ever carried out here.

On the second floor of the building is a lunch room. The burglar entered this after it had been closed for the night, and cut a hole in its floor to reach a haberdashery underneath, and then broke through the wall into the jewelry store alongside.

THE FINEST LAXATIVE IN THIRTY CENTURIES

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil Is Truly
Tasteless—Not Flavored or Disguised

For 3,000 years castor oil has been the world's best laxative, but until now an offensive, sickening taste has limited its use.

For 3,000 years chemists have tried to remove the taste.

Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil is just what the name means—a pure, clear refined oil without any taste. It is the newest product of Spencer Kellogg & Sons of Buffalo, large refiners of vegetable oils.

Anybody can disguise the taste of castor oil by mixing it with alcohol, wintergreen, peppermint, or other flavors, but it remained for the Kelloggs to keep the oil pure and make it tasteless. Kellogg's Tasteless Castor Oil works even better than the old, evil dose without pain or griping. Children take it easily.

Sold now in all drug stores, 25c and 50c. Ask for Kellogg's Tasteless and look for the trade mark—a green castor leaf bearing the Kellogg signature. Made only by Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., of refiners.

TALKS ON THRIFT.

No. 3—Beating the High Cost of Living.

"I am deeply interested in the movement to stimulate thrift and will gladly co-operate so far as present duties permit. It is apparent that the departure from a simple living standard, especially by the middle classes endeavoring to emulate the very wealthy, is having a deleterious effect upon our national life." Governor George W. P. Hunt of Arizona.

An Illinois newspaper a short time ago printed across the top of its editorial page this slogan: "Demand causes high prices. Individual retrenchment is the only effective individual defense."

This means that, in the opinion of that editor, there is no immediate prospect of a halt in the steady rise of prices, and that the only way to beat the high cost of living is to stop living so high.

An increasing number of citizens are inclined to agree with this opinion and genuine thrift and old-fashioned saving are becoming more popular than they have been in these latter years of extravagant living in this country.

A greater number of persons than ever before is now making a determined effort to meet the greater demands on the pocket book by earning more and by saving more, so that stored up money at interest in the bank or elsewhere may help defray the constantly heavier expenses.

Two young men, one in receipt of wages of $12 a week and another of twice that amount, each eat in the same restaurant, wear clothing of practically identical appearance, and each of them is regularly "broke" at the end of the week. Evidently the actually necessary expenditures of the two cannot be very different, but the ratio to the wages each receives is vastly different.

If the one with the larger income does not give anything, the fault lies with him more than the high cost of living.

The man who spends everything he makes when he gets $1,000 a year is very apt to spend everything he makes when his income is $10,000 a year, without regard to changes in the market prices of the "necessities of life." A fixed habit of saving is the all-important thing.

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man an unhappy slave. For impure blood and sluggish liver, use Burdock Blood Bitters. On the market 35 years. $1.00 a bottle.

Men Who Stole High Power
Cars Are Rounded Up in New York.

New York, Jan. 20. The members of a band charged with stealing automobiles worth more than $100,000, were arrested here today upon information furnished by Daniel Kelly, a prisoner in jail at Elizabeth, N. J. They gave their names as Chester Travis and John Chandler, both chauffeurs. The police said that they implicated a prosperous automobile dealer at Lakewood, N. J.

According to the police the men under arrest said that they had stolen high power cars in New York and Philadelphia and driven them to Lakewood, where the local dealer bought them for $300 each.

See That You Get Your Share Mr. Merchant!

Now, Mr. Local Dealer, here is some straight talk.

This is the month in which many manufacturers are laying out their advertising plans for the coming year.

These plans naturally have for their object an increase of business. The manufacturer is going to spend his money where it is going to give him the best return.

One thing that will influence his plans is the extent to which dealers will co-operate in making local sales. That word co-operation does not mean sitting down and letting customers come, if they are willing. It means actively pushing the sale of goods advertised in their local newspapers by the manufacturers.

Now, why not let the manufacturers with whom you do business know that if they will help make business for you, you will help make business for them.

Tell them that if they will use the newspapers of your town to make known the merit of their goods you will let the public know that these goods can be had at your store.

Co-operate—and let your manufacturers know you are willing to do so. Share in the dollar harvest by acting now, when it is time to sow the seed.

Co-operative work with dealers in nationally distributed articles is part of the function of the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association. Correspondence with general advertisers is solicited.

Scotland, and Charles H. Kidd, England, of Exeter; John Chynkowsky, Russia, of Portsmouth; John S. Johnson, Sweden, of Kensington; Julius A. Stauch, Germany, of Salem; and Antonio Blasko, Austria, of Newmarket. Twelve were held for a second examination.

The examination was conducted by M. Miller Dodge of the United States naturalization bureau before Judge Robert Chamberlain.

VEGETABLES THAT GO WITH MEATS.

There are reasons for the various combinations of vegetables with meats as to flavor and with fruits, acidity as well as flavor.

Red meats seem to call for white vegetables. Potatoes, onions, stewed celery with steaks and roasts.

Fricassee chicken with rice is a time-honored dish, and young onions go well also with chicken and pork, when roasted.

Peas with lamb, asparagus with mutton, and even with beef it is not to be overlooked.

Without having a practical knowledge of the composition of food substances, we will all by some instinct combine foods, as for example, who thinks of corn beef without cabbage, or roast pork without apple sauce.

The vegetable acids are required to neutralize the natural oils. For these and other reasons we like mint sauce with lamb, orange salad with duck, and so on.

Cauliflower, brussels sprouts and cabbage are all of the same family, and much goes well with steaks, chops or ham.

Green corn and young chicken, in fact, any kind of meat will be enjoyed with the king of vegetables.

The tomato is one of our most common vegetable. It goes well anywhere, as does the succulent cucumber. Cucumber with fish seems to be a favorite combination, and as fish is rather hard to associate with it is not so often prepared as it deserves. The pleasant potato is omnipresent and always welcome. Macaroni is a good accompaniment to fish and will combine most acceptably with it in an escaloped dish.

Green vegetables are necessary for the welfare of our department of the interior, and should be found on our tables the year round, when possible. Fresh lettuce is now a daily commodity in our markets, and with a French dressing is a most wholesome salad.

String beans and asparagus go well with veal in the digestive harmony.

Rice, beans and starch (could) should be accompanied with Swiss chard, buttered beets or beet greens and serve with lemon or vinegar.

Hominy or corn bread accompanies a roast of tenderloin pork, or the highly-prized piglet.

There is no arbitrary rule which is so iron-clad that one may not occasionally stray from the path of common usage in the serving of vegetables.

HONEYMOON ON AN ELEPHANT

Wisconsin Girl Goes 18,000 Miles Around the World to Wed College Sweetheart.

Kenosha, Wis.—Customs of the Far East were invoked at the marriage in Balgum, India, October 16, of Miss Eva Thellen of Kenosha to Wendell Kumlien of Appleton, Wis.

Miss Thellen traveled more than three-fourths around the world to meet her fiancé at Bombay, whence they traveled on the back of an elephant overland to Balgum, on the frontier.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. Kusberger of Wisconsin, Methodist missionary, under the banyan tree of the little tropic city and was attended by more than 300 Americans and natives. Garlands of roses lined the route of the marriage procession, in accordance with eastern custom. After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom began their long journey to the village of Gobuk, whence they will proceed to Moradabad to make their home.

The Indian ceremonies marked the culmination of a romance that began years ago when the bride and bridegroom were students at Lawrence college, Appleton. Mrs. Kumlien's journey to meet her fiancé at Bombay carried her over 18,000 miles of land and sea, and was accompanied by more than a month of delay and misunderstanding as to the date and time of meeting.

Bride and bridegroom will teach in the mission schools at Moradabad upon the conclusion of their honeymoon on elephant back.

GOVERNMENT WILL MEET BUSINESS MEN HALF WAY

President Wilson Reads His Message on Anti-Trust Legislation to Con- gress--Proposes Powerful Inter- state Boards.

Washington, Jan. 20. President Wilson for the fifth time since last April addressed Congress in joint session. While the novelty of the event has departed somewhat with the recurrence of the President's visits to the Capitol, there was apparent today intense interest in the subject-matter of his speech--anti-trust legislation. In many ways the President considers the trust question as the most vital of public problems. He believes that while tariff revision and currency reform were corrective of themselves, their absolute success depends largely on the destruction of private monopoly and the elimination of restraints on trade through which the prices of commodities are controlled or discriminations in credit are practiced.

The President left the White House at 12:10 o'clock. Both the House and Senate met at noon and recessed while the senators, two by two, filed over to the hall of the House for the President's address about 12:30 o'clock. A joint committee met the President in Speaker Clark's office to conduct him to the rostrum. The President entered the crowded chamber at 12:30 o'clock, while the audience rose and gave him prolonged applause and cheers. The President took his place at the clerk's desk and began reading promptly at 12:30 o'clock. His only look gave great attention.

The scene was a colorful one and no less dramatic than on any of the previous occasions when the President, setting aside precedent that had prevailed since George Washington's time, came to the halls of Congress to address the national legislative body in person. The high-backed galleries presented a wave of color. On the floor the legislators in somber conventional garb packed the hall to its utmost corners. Secretaries Harrison, Daniels and Wilson and Postmaster General Burleson had seats on the floor and other officials were clustered about the Speaker's desk. Hundreds of people straining for a glimpse of the President and unable to secure admission packed the halls of the Capitol.

The President spoke as follows: "Gentlemen of the Congress: In my report on the state of the Union which I had the privilege of reading to you on the second of December last I ventured to reserve for discussion at a later date the subject of additional legislation regarding the very difficult and intricate matter of trusts and monopolies. The time now seems opportune to turn to this great question not only because the currency legislation, which absorbed your attention and the attention of the country in December, is now disposed of, but also because opinion seems to be clearing about me with singular rapidity in this other great field of action. In the matter of the currency, it cleared suddenly and very happily after the much-debated act was passed in respect of the monopolies, which have multiplied about us and in regard to the various means by which they have been organized and maintained. It seems to be coming to a clear and all but universal agreement in anticipation of our action, as if by way of preparation, making the way easier to see and easier to set out upon with confidence and without confusion of counsel.

Monopolies Yielding to Public Opinion
"Legislation has its atmosphere like everything else, and the atmosphere of accommodation and mutual understanding which we now breathe with so much refreshment is matter of sincere congratulation. It ought to make our task very much less difficult, and embarrassing than it would have been had we been obliged to continue to act amidst the atmosphere of suspicion and antagonism which has so long made it impossible to approach such questions with dispassionate fairness. Constructive legislation, when successful, is almost the embodiment of convincing experience and of the mature public opinion which finally springs out of that experience. Legislation is a business of interpretation, not of origination, and it is now plain what the opinion is to which we must give effect in this matter. It is not recent or hasty opinion. It springs out of the experience of a whole generation. It has clarified itself by long contest and those who to a long time battled with it and sought to change it are now frankly and honestly yielding to it, and seeking to conform their actions to it. The great business men who organized and financed monopoly and those who administered it in actual everyday transactions have year after year, until now, either denied its existence or justified it as necessary for the efficient maintenance and development of the vast business processes of the country in the modern circumstances of trade and manufacture and finance but all the while opinion has made head against them. The average business man is convinced that the ways of liberty are also the ways of peace and the ways of success as well, and at last the masters of business on the great scale have begun to yield their preference and purpose, perhaps, their judgment also, to honorable surrender.

Corporate Antagonism to Government Over

"What we are purposing to do, therefore, is, happily, not to hamper or interfere with business as enlightened business men prefer to do it, or in any sense to put it under the ban. The antagonism between business and government is over. We are now about to give expression to the best business judgment of America, to what we know to be the business conscience and honor of the land. The Government and business men are ready to meet each other halfway in a common effort to spare business methods with both public opinion and the law. The best-informed men of the business world condemn the methods and processes and consequences of monopoly as we condemn them; and the instinctive judgment of the vast majority of business men everywhere goes with them. We shall now be their spokesmen. That is the strength of our position and the sure prophesy of what will ensue when our reasonable work is done.

Not to Unsettle, but to Safeguard Industry

"When serious contest ends, when men unite in opinion and purpose, those who are to change their ways of business joining with those who ask for the change, it is possible to effect it in the way in which prudent and thoughtful and patriotic men would wish to see it brought about, with as few, as slight, as easy and simple business readjustments as possible. In the circumstances, nothing essential disturbed, nothing torn up by its roots, no parts rent asunder which can be left in wholesome combination. Fortunately no measures of sweeping or novel character are necessary. It will be understood that our object is not to unsettle business or anywhere seriously break its established courses abroad. On the contrary, we desire the laws we are now about to pass to be the bulwarks and safeguards of industry against the forces that have disturbed it. What we have to do can be done in a new spirit, in thoughtful moderation, with out resolution of any untoward kind.

"We are all agreed that private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable, and our programme is founded upon that conviction. It will be a comprehensive, but not a radical or unacceptable programme and there are its terms, the changes which opinion deliberately sanctions and for which business waits.

No More Interlocking Directorates

"It waits with acquiescence, in the first place, for laws which will effectually prohibit and prevent such interlockings of the personnel of the directorates of great corporations--banks and railroads, industrial, commercial and public service bodies--as in effect result in making those who borrow and those who lend practically one and the same, those who sell and those who buy, but the same persons trading with one another under different names and in different combinations, and those who affect to compete in fact partners and masters of some whole field of business. Sufficient leniency should be allowed, of course in which to effect those changes of organization without inconvenience or confusion. Such a prohibition will work much more than a mere nega-

It's the old remedy that has cured thousands of cases of backache, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc. It's the old remedy that has cured thousands of cases of backache, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc. It's the old remedy that has cured thousands of cases of backache, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc.

Five good by correcting the serious evils which have arisen because, for example, the men who have been the directing spirits of the great investment banks have usurped the place which belongs to independent industrial management, working in its own behalf. It will bring new men, new energies, a new spirit of initiative, a new blood into the management of our great business enterprises. It will open the field of industrial development and origination to scores of men who have been obliged to serve when their abilities entitled them to direct. It will immensely lighten the young men coming on and will greatly enrich the business activities of the whole country.

Federal Regulation of Railroad Finances.

"In the second place, business men as well as those who direct public affairs now recognize, and recognize with painful clearness, the great harm and injustice which has been done to many if not all of the great railroad systems of the country by the way in which they have been financed and their own distinctive interests subordinated to the interests of the men who financed them and to other business enterprises which those men wished to promote. The country is ready, therefore, to accept, and accept with relief as well as approval, a law which will confer upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to superintend and regulate the financial operations by which the railroads are henceforth to be supplied with the money they need for the proper development to meet the rapidly growing requirements of the country for increased and improved facilities of transportation. We cannot postpone action in this matter without leaving the railroads exposed to many serious handicaps and hazards and the prosperity of the country are inseparably connected. Upon this question those who are chiefly responsible for the actual management and operation of the railroads have spoken very plainly and very earnestly with a purpose we ought to be quick to accept. It will be one step, and a very important one, toward the necessary separation of the business of production from the business of transportation.

Trust Law Commission Proposed

"The business of the country awaits, has long awaited, and has suffered because it could not obtain, further and more explicit legislative definition of the policy and meaning of the existing anti-trust law. Nothing hampers business like uncertainty. Nothing daunts or discourages it like the necessity to take chances, to run the risk of falling under the condemnation of the law before it can make sure just what the law is. Surely we are sufficiently familiar with the actual processes and methods of monopoly of the many hurtful restraints of trade to make definition possible, at any rate up to the limits of what experience has disclosed. These practices, being now abundantly disclosed, can be explicitly and item by item forbidden by statute in such terms as will practically eliminate uncertainty of the law itself and the penalty being made equally plain.

Interstate Trade Commission the Panama

"And the business men of the country desire something more than that the menace of legal process in these matters be made explicit and intelligible. They desire the advice, the definite guidance and information which can be supplied by an administrative body, an interstate trade commission. The opinion of the country would instantly approve of such a commission. It would not wish to see it empowered to make terms with monopoly or in any sort to assume control of business, as if the Government made itself responsible. It demands such a commission only as an indispensable instrument of information and publicity, as a clearing house for the facts by which both the public mind and the managers of great business undertakings should be guided, and as an instrumentality for doing justice to business where the processes of the courts or the natural forces of correction outside the courts are inadequate to adjust the remedy to the wrong in a way that will meet all the equities and circumstances of the case. Producing industries, for example, which have passed the point up to which combination may be consistent with the public interest and the freedom of trade, cannot always be descended into their component units as readily as railroad companies or similar organizations can be. Their dissolution by ordinary legal process may sometimes involve financial consequences likely to overwhelm the security market and bring upon it breakdown and confusion. There ought to be an administrative commission, capable of directing and shaping such corrective processes, not only in aid of the courts but also by independent suggestions, if necessary.

To Determine Individual Responsibility.

"Inasmuch as our object and the spirit of our action in these matters is to meet business half way in its processes of self-correction and distribute its legitimate course as little as possible, we ought to see to it, and the judgment of practical and sagacious men of affairs everywhere would applaud as if we did see to it, that penalties and punishments should fall not upon business itself, to its confusion and interruption, but upon the individuals who use the instrumentalities of business to do things which public policy and sound business practice condemn. Every act of business is done at the command or upon the initiative of some ascertainable person or group of persons. These should be held individually responsible and the punishment should fall upon them, not upon the business organization of which they make illegal use. It should be one of the main objects of our legislation to divest such persons of their corporate cloak and deal with them as with those who do not represent their corporations, but merely by deliberate intention break the law. Business men the country through would, I am sure, applaud us if we were to take effective steps to see that the officers and directors of great business bodies were prevented from bringing them and the business of the country into disrepute and danger.

Would Prohibit Holding Companies

"Other questions remain which will need very thoughtful and practical treatment. Enterprises, in these modern days of great individual fortunes, are sometimes interlocked, not by being under the control of the same directors, but by the fact that the greater part of their corporate stock is owned by a single person or group of persons who are in some way intimately related in interest. We are agreed, I take it, that holding companies should be prohibited, but what of the controlling private ownership of individuals or actually cooperative groups of individuals? Shall the private owners of capital stock be suffered to use themselves to effect holding companies? We do not wish, I suppose, to forbid the purchase of stocks by any person who pleases to buy them in such quantities as he can afford, or in any way arbitrarily to limit the sale of stocks to bona fide purchasers. Shall we require the owners of stock, when their voting power in several companies which ought to be independent of one another would constitute actual control, to make elections in which of them they will exercise their right to vote? This question I venture for your consideration.

Would Aid Individual Against Trusts

"There is another matter in which imperative consideration of justice and fair play suggest thoughtful remedial action. Not only do many of the combinations effected or sought to be effected in the industrial world's work an injustice upon the public in general; they also directly and seriously injure the individuals who are part of business in one unfair way or another by the many dishonoring and exterminating forces of combination. I hope that we shall agree in giving private individuals who claim to have been injured by these processes the right to found their suits for redress upon the facts and judgments proved and entered in suits by the Government where the Government has upon its own initiative sued the combinations complained of and won its suit, and that the statute of limitations should be suffered to run against such litigants only from the date of the conclusion of the Government's action. It is not fair that the private litigant should be obliged to set up and establish again the facts which the Government has proved. He cannot afford, he has not the power, to make use of such processes of inquiry as the Government has command of. Thus shall individual justice be done while the processes of business are rectified and squared with the general conscience.

The Country Demands Action

"I have laid the case before you, no doubt, as it lies in your own mind, as it lies in the thought of the country. What must every candid man say of the suggestions I have laid before you, of the plain obligations of which I have reminded you? That these are new things for which the country is not prepared? No; but that they are old things now familiar, and must of course be undertaken if we are to square our laws with the thought and desire of the country. Until these things are done, conscientious business men the country over will be unsatisfied. They are in these things our mentors and colleagues. We are now about to write the additional articles of our constitution of peace, the peace that is honor and freedom and prosperity."

of Rehester, N. Y. CHIEF STEWARD LOST FROM WYOMING.

Rear Admiral Badger, commanding the Atlantic fleet, reported to the Navy Department yesterday that Forest E. Louth, chief commissary steward, disappeared from the flagship Wyoming at sea last Thursday and is believed to have been drowned. The battleship at the time was bound for Cuba to participate in the advanced base operations of the Marine Brigade. Louth was a son of Richard J. Louth

A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

When, Croup, Constipated or if Feverish Give California Syrup of Figs, Then Don't Worry

Mothers can rest easy after giving California Syrup of Figs, because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered. When croup, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious laxative. Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what age your little one--if full or cold or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember a gentle inside cleansing should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of California Syrup of Figs, then look carefully and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company. We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

HOW ONE MOTHER RESTS.

She Lies on the Couch and the Children Study "At Her"; and the Children Lead Their Classes.

Miss Burdett followed little Mrs. Brown into the family living-room, where every article showed unmistakable evidence of long contact with vigorous young lives. "I am Fred's and Mabel's teacher," she explained, "and I've come to ask you about your children. I cannot believe that nature alone is responsible for such a family as yours."

"You mean they do not keep up with the others?" asked the little mother, anxiously.

"Up with them--why, my dear Mrs. Brown, don't you know that they are 'way ahead of all the rest? It is not because of what I do for them in school, so I've come to you for the solution."

"But, dear me, I do nothing; the older children have long been ahead of me. I did not have many advantages when I was young, and I've no time now for more than a glance at the headlines in the papers and now and then a short article in a magazine. Why, I'm too tired when evening comes to give the little ones the help I might wish for their lessons."

"Will you tell me," asked Miss Burdett, gently, "just how they do study at home?"

"Yes, I can tell you that," said Mrs. Brown; "they study at me! After supper I come in here and lie on the couch and while the two older children do up the dishes, the two little ones read me their lessons for the next day. Then they explain them just as their teacher does."

"Then the two older ones come with their books, and they take turns reading aloud and talking things over. It is real interesting, especially the history and geography and hygiene. I feel quite rested when they are all through, and the children seem to enjoy it as much as I do."

"How did you ever come to think of such a plan?"

"It isn't really a plan. I've always noticed that children love to read aloud and explain about things, and I thought that might help to fix their lessons in their minds. Then it became a habit, because we all enjoyed it. I wanted the children to feel that I was interested in their work; I did not know enough to help with the lessons, so listening was about all I could do."

"Mrs. Brown, never say that you do not know how to help! I believe that we teachers talk too much, and don't let the children talk enough. Your children are the only ones in their classes who seem to understand what they read, and who can express clearly the ideas of the book in their own words. I've wondered why. Now I see that it comes from 'studying at a mother' who is too tired and too modest to try to 'help them along.'"

MR. HETT DENIES THE STORY

Don't Want Place on the Board.--
Superintendent's Place; That's Another Question

For several days rumor has been flying on the wings of gossip that Joseph Hett, a former street commissioner would be the new member of the board of public works and will be elected by the city government on Thursday night. Today the Herald man ran into Uncle Joseph and naturally put it up to him. With both hands in the air he denied it most emphatically. He told the reporter that he would not accept it under any consideration and if the city council is to appoint a man, it would not be him.

COURT OPENS AT EXETER

Judge Chamberlain is Sitting and Long Jury List is Called

The January term of the Rockingham county superior court convened at Exeter on Tuesday with Judge Robert Chamberlain of Berlin on the bench, his appearance causing much surprise as it was expected that Judge William H. Sawyer would preside. There was a larger representative of the members of the bar than for many years, and a longer jury list than for many terms. There were 45 cases marked for the jury.

Court was opened at 10, Rev. H. P. Quimby pastor of the Methodist church offering prayer. Sheriff O'Connell of Portsmouth is in charge, assisted by two of his deputies, Frank O. Tilton of Exeter and Channing Robinson of Newmarket.

Out of the county attorneys present were noted Sherman E. Harrington of Manchester and Stratford County Solicitor, George T. Hughes of Dover.

The members of the Rockingham county bar present with business with the court were: Edward H. Adams, John H. Bartlett, Charles H. Batchelder, Samuel W. Emery, Ralph C. Gray, County Solicitor Ernest L. Guntill, Albert H. Hatch, William E. Maswin, John L. Mitchell, Harry W. Peyser, Amos S. Rindlett, Judge Thomas H. Stokes, John G. Tobey and Judge Harry K. Torrey, all of Portsmouth; Former Attorney General Edwin H. Eastman, Arthur G. Fuller, Percy Gardner, Judge Edward D. Mayer, Stewart E. Rowe, John Seamon, Judge Henry A. Shute, Richard E. Shute, William H. Sleeper and Ernest G. Thompson, all of Exeter; Judge I. T. George, and Henry T. George of Newmarket; John T. Bartlett of Raymond; H. L. Grinnell and E. H. Wagoner of Berry; and W. D. Pulver of Salem.

The afternoon session was given to hearing of naturalization and divorce cases.

Chancellor, Mrs. Mary Kelliker, Mrs. Margaret Kelley, Mrs. Sadie Lynskey, Mrs. Nora O'Connell, Mrs. Mary Ryan, Mrs. Mary A. Ryan, Mrs. Elizabeth Perry, Mrs. Elizabeth Coffey.

That the weather man has been doing some hard guessing.

That he predicted clear and cold for today.

That the power plant men at the navy yard are prize one of the force who resides in Elliot for his standing in the Amulet club.

That he got six quarters from the last calf he slaughtered.

That the boys are asking why he did not make it right while he was about it.

That they are recommending that he get in touch at once with the Smithsonian Institute.

That the president of the Gmire Club has not taken the count.

That the last social in which Captain Mechmore was the host is evidence that they are still on the map.

That the regular call men on Engine 4 are whispering things about one of the subs.

That the latest is that he discovered a coal smoldering in the hallway on a Hanover street residence.

That instead of dragging the burning fragment into the street and checking the fire he ran all the way to the engine house to give an alarm.

That when he got back the women of the house gave him the merry laugh.

That a committee has been appointed to see that his act is properly recognized with a medal.

That Joseph Hett says somebody else can have the appointment on the board of public works.

That the box that sounds the "no school" signal has outworn its usefulness.

That a new one will have to be installed before long.

That the hearing on the horse case in the district court this afternoon attracted numerous spectators.

That the boys say the "Miss Watz" is all right but they want the candy end of it eliminated.

That the old fashioned snacks are what they are looking for and not the molasses stuff.

On and after Jan. 1, 1914, Dr. S. A. A. Pickering, dentist, will be located in a new office, with an entire new and up-to-date outfit, situated at No. 32 Congress street, nearly opposite the old office, and having the same entrance as Dr. William O. Jenkins. I herewith extend a cordial invitation to all of my patrons and the public to inspect the same.
